“Wine Flavor Chemistry – The Basics”

Dr. Susan Eberle

Professor, Department of Viticulture and Enology, University of California, Davis

Dr. Eberle's research is focused in two major areas: The development and application of analytical chemistry techniques to study wine flavor chemistry and the physico-chemical interactions of flavors with nonvolatile wine components; and the elucidation of the chemical mechanisms for observed health effects of wine and “Red berries and clove spice, with a hint of asparagus”

Unraveling the complexity of wine aromas

David Raffaele, Master Winemaker - Maurice Carrie Vineyard and Winery, Temecula California

He started working at Maurice Carrie Vineyard and Winery as a lab technician and within three years was awarded the position as winemaker for Keyways Winery. Still dissatisfied with his own understanding of wine, David left Temecula in 2012 to complete his bachelor's degree from UC Davis, California. While there he also worked as a cellar hand, enologist and viticulture technician for high-profile wineries in Napa Valley, Sonoma and Lodi. In 2016 David returned to Temecula Valley and to both Maurice Carrie and Keyways Wineries, acting as winemaker for both companies. He specializes in producing wines from Spanish and Rhone grape varieties.
